

THANK YOU TO OUR VOLUNTEERS

This year, National Volunteer Week 2025 is from April 27th to May 3rd. This year's National Volunteer Week theme recognizes that volunteers make waves and highlights that, like a wave, volunteering is, "movement building." There is no shortage of volunteers' impact within CAMRT's organization, constantly moving us forward to better and brighter days. We want to thank and recognize the momentum and power that YOU, our volunteers, have contributed to making a wave of change.

This newsletter spread highlights a small collection of photos and quotes from various volunteers and committee members, submitted to us over the past couple of years.

Follow the QR code below to explore the different volunteer committees that drive the organization. CAMRT wants to express our extreme gratitude to all members who volunteer for events or projects that are not listed on our website.

“ I have volunteered on the CAMRT Board Of Directors since 2020. Was it terrifying at the beginning? Yes. Did I feel worthy of being on the board? No. All the questions and doubts we have in regards to volunteering are normal – do not let that stop you. We ALL have something to contribute! The opportunities for education, interprofessional collaboration and networking across industry are invaluable! You will be challenged, you will grow, you will have fun, you may get to travel, but most of all, you will be part of the conversations shaping the future of the MRT profession! Get in the game – volunteer!

“ I have volunteered with the CDC committee since 2018. I started immediately volunteering after completing my CDC credential. I started first as a committee member and then took a second term as Chair. I have made lots of great connections within CAMRT and have enjoyed collaborating with colleagues across the country. It's a wonderful way to connect with colleagues within your specific field and always nice to get to know what is happening across the country. It helps keep our standards high and gives a wonderful way to give back to the larger community. - Leah Classen

“ Volunteering with the CTIC committee allows me to give back to the MRT community and support the growth and development of our Technologists. Additionally, I enjoy the connection with other MRTs from different parts of Canada while working on this type of committee. Building a community is important to me, especially after COVID and with the political landscape of our profession. Working with passionate, organized CAMRT staff (like Justine) and volunteers means work is easy and fun. - Rebekah Bahr

“ I have volunteered in the past with the CAMRT for both the nuclear medicine exam item writing committee and the CAMRT Atlantic Advisory council. I have enjoyed volunteering with both groups, and it has been fantastic getting to meet with other MRTs from across Canada through these volunteer activities. - Kurtis Billard
